Brit Stocks helps public finance clients navigate tax-exempt and taxable financings with careful attention and a commitment to getting deals done right.

Brit brings a deal-focused approach to public finance, representing clients as bond counsel, borrower's counsel, underwriter's counsel, and lender's counsel — across a wide range of tax-exempt and taxable financings. Whether the transaction involves a large hospital system, a public school district, or a charter school, Brit works to keep deals moving and structured correctly from the start.

Brit's practice spans several sectors central to public finance: healthcare, education, energy, and governmental. This range means Brit regularly works through the distinct regulatory and structural considerations each sector brings to bond transactions, from tax-exempt hospital facilities financings to public school bond offerings.

Brit also represents borrowers in New Markets Tax Credit financings, adding another dimension to a practice that covers both traditional municipal bond work and community development finance.
