Shanghai – (86-21) 6135-6132

Gan helps American and European (French-speaking in particular) companies to achieve their business developments in Greater China area and also assists Chinese companies in their overseas investments and projects, leveraging his elusive combination of corporate and tax expertise, as well as his French language skills.

Gan has extensive hands-on experiences in foreign direct investments in China, Chinese outbound investments, cross-border M&As, and sino-foreign joint-venture projects. He represents both large multinational listed companies and private SMEs in a variety of industries, including TMT, healthcare, manufacturing, chemicals, transport, education, food & beverage, and fashion & luxury, etc.

Gan also regularly provides tax advice to corporations, pass-through entities and individuals in terms of investment structure, cross-border transactions, corporate reorganizations, equity/debt financing, application of tax treaties, and more generally on various income tax and value-added tax issues. He also frequently negotiates on behalf of his clients with Chinese tax authorities across the country.

Before joining Dorsey, Gan has over 10 year's professional experiences, both in a boutique European law firm's Shanghai office as corporate and tax lawyer and in Alibaba Cloud Computing Co., Ltd. as legal counsel.
