Harsha Goel structures and negotiates cross-border M&A and strategic transactions for international and emerging-market clients navigating complex multi-jurisdictional deals.

Harsha brings a genuinely international perspective to corporate transactions, advising clients across the full lifecycle of cross-border mergers and acquisitions, joint venture arrangements, fundraisings, reorganizations, and disposals. Based in Dorsey & Whitney's London office, Harsha regularly acts for clients in the energy and natural resources, financial services, technology and IT-enabled services, retail, healthcare, and manufacturing sectors.

A significant part of Harsha's practice focuses on the U.K. national security and investment screening regime under the National Security and Investment Act (NSI Act). He advises clients across a range of sectors — including government contracting, technology, and defense — on navigating mandatory and voluntary notification obligations and the broader implications of U.K. investment screening for deal structuring and timing.

Harsha also advises international companies on their Indian operations and Indian corporates on outbound cross-border transactions. He is a key member of Dorsey's India Group, and his dual qualification and prior practice in India give him direct insight into the regulatory, commercial, and structural considerations that shape India-linked deals. Harsha's India-related work contributed to Dorsey being recognized as a "Significant Player" for India work in the India Business Law Journal's 2026 Top Foreign Law Firms survey.

Harsha's cross-border work has attracted recognition from leading legal directories. He is listed as a key lawyer in The Legal 500 U.K. 2026 and 2024 for Dorsey's London M&A group, where he is described as "a very smart young lawyer ... whose methodical working methods were much needed and valued throughout the twists and turns of the
