Neal structures and negotiates mergers and acquisitions for operating companies, sellers, and strategic acquirers—from first term sheet through closing and beyond.

Neal guides clients through every stage of a corporate transaction, bringing practical, business-minded counsel to deals that range from single-facility divestitures to multi-target acquisitions. Whether the client is a company pursuing a strategic acquisition, a seller working toward an exit, or a management team navigating day-to-day governance questions, Neal focuses on keeping transactions on track and aligned with each client's broader objectives.

His transactional work spans initial structuring and due diligence through negotiation, documentation, and post-closing matters. Neal has represented clients in a range of industries—including food and agriculture, construction, aerospace manufacturing, cannabis, and healthcare—advising on the full arc of mergers and acquisitions (M&A) and related corporate governance matters.
