Peter helps private equity groups, commercial lenders, and public and private companies structure and negotiate complex financing arrangements so they can close transactions with confidence across domestic and international markets.

Peter's practice centers on debt financing transactions. He advises clients on secured and unsecured financings, senior and subordinated debt, working capital credit facilities, bridge loans, investment grade financings, acquisition financings, leveraged financings, revolving facilities, and asset-based financings. He also advises on debt restructurings and workouts, including liability management transactions and debtor-in-possession financings.

Peter represents clients across multiple industries in transactions spanning various U.S. and international jurisdictions. His clients include private equity groups, commercial lending institutions, and other private and public companies. He has worked on financings in sectors that include energy, insurance, gaming, and mobile technology.

Peter also represents corporate trust institutions in various agency and indenture trustee capacities in connection with domestic and cross-border debt capital markets transactions.

Recent representative matters include a refinancing involving new $225 million first lien and refinanced $107 million second lien term loan facilities for a global provider of asset performance assurance and optimization solutions; a $200 million senior secured term loan refinancing for a national insurance company; amendments and restatements of a $1.1 billion senior secured asset-based revolving credit facility and a $950 million senior secured term loan B facility for an energy company; a $135 million credit facility for a private mobile video game company that supported both a debt refinancing and a cross-border acquisition of a Canadian company; and a $60 million secured term loan for a developer and distributor of casino table games and enhanced systems for land-based
