Stewart Worthy advises clients on complex cross-border M&A and other strategic transactions, with particular experience guiding US clients on their investments into the UK and Europe and executing transactions across Europe and emerging markets.

Stewart brings a focused transactional practice to clients navigating geographically and structurally demanding deals. He advises on cross-border mergers and acquisitions, private equity investments, joint ventures, international securities offerings (including on AIM and LSE's Main Market), strategic alliances, and complex restructurings.

Stewart's clients span a wide range of industries, including mining, oil and gas, clean energy, automotive, packaging, industrials, manufacturing, retail, hospitality and tech. Whether advising a sovereign-backed joint venture on a multibillion-dollar mining investment, representing private equity sponsors on cross-border acquisitions, or helping international businesses execute strategic investments and disposals across the UK, Europe and emerging markets (including Central Asia, Central and Eastern Europe and Africa), Stewart combines international deal experience with a commercial approach on navigating complexity and getting transactions to completion.

Stewart is described as a "name to note" for investment work in The Legal 500, which has also described him as a "great deal captain" with "technical expertise coupled with an easy-going personality". He has been recognized as a notable practitioner in the IFLR 1000.
