Tatum structures tax-efficient estate plans and wealth transfer strategies that protect what individuals and families have built across generations.

Tatum works with individuals, families, family offices, and fiduciaries to design and implement comprehensive estate plans built around each client's long-term objectives. From generational wealth transfers to business succession planning, Tatum drafts the precise instruments that turn complex planning concepts into workable, durable structures.

Tatum's practice spans the full arc of estate planning and trust and estate administration — including asset protection strategies and fiduciary guidance for clients navigating the responsibilities that come with managing inherited or transferred wealth. Tatum takes time to understand each client's goals before recommending a planning approach, then translates that approach into clear, effective legal documents.
