Zejun Jiang helps investors and companies get cross-border deals done, from early-stage venture financings to complex M&A and corporate restructurings. He regularly represents private equity and venture capital funds, growth-stage companies, and large conglomerates across technology, advanced manufacturing, and life sciences.

Before joining Dorsey, Zejun spent more than five years at a leading Chinese law firm, where he handled the full life cycle of transactions — legal due diligence, deal structuring, negotiation of transaction documents, and closing. Zejun pairs a sharp legal mind with practical business sense: he identifies issues early, explains them in plain language, and proposes solutions that protect the commercial objective rather than stall the deal.
